NOON REPORTS.

The Fool's Last Day.

NEW YORK, August 6.—Dr. Tanner entered upon the last day of his fast at noon. His pain is intense, and ever since last night every move he makes either induces emesis or causes eruptions of gas from the stomach. A chemical analysis of the fluid from the stomach, it is claimed, shows that the fast has been honestly conducted. Every hour he walks around the enclosure without assistance, that the spectators may see him. At 1 a. m. he was quite sick. Fifteen minutes later he was lying on his cot, with his knees drawn up to his stomach. He asked the watchers to notice his breathing, giving his reasons therefor. His respiration was found to be 14 to the minute, and natural. He fell asleep again, but soon after made an effort to vomit, but brought up only a small quantity of matter. After some hours of sleep he again drew himself up in a heap. He soon after had another attack of nausea, vomiting mucus and water. A suggestion that a mustard plaster be put on his stomach was scouted by the doctor, who said nothing would relieve his discomfort but beef, wine and iron. He remained quiet and comfortable until near 7 o'clock, when he ejected two ounces of water, tinged with bile, from his stomach. He was given drink at 8:15 o'clock, two and a half ounces of water being administered, which was probably the cause of another attack of nausea and sickness. A mustard footbath made him quite comfortable again, however, and at 10 o'clock he drank four ounces of water, and then descending to the lower hall, he walked one lap around it. He repeated his pedestrian performances at 11 and 12 o'clock, and in the interval drank three more ounces of water. At noon he declared his condition good. Proposals of marriage, and an offer from a Chicago Lyceum manager for the Doctor to lecture through the Western States were among his morning mail. A very large crowd was in attendance.

Racing.

BRIGHTON BEACH, August 6.—The first race yesterday, selling race, all ages, three quarters of a mile heats; Western won both heats, Nellie D. second. Time 1:20½.

Second race, all ages, one mile and a half; Surge won by three lengths, Krupp second, Bayard third. Time 2:44¾.

Third race, all ages, one mile and a furlong; Mary Anderson won by three lengths, Kate Clark second, Bowstring third. Time 2:02.

Fourth race, steeple chase handicap, all ages, one mile and a half; Ventilator won, Goldish second, Lizzie D. third. Time not taken.

The weather is pleasant and the attendance fair; the track is heavy in some parts. First race, one mile, Dan Sparkling won; Leamington gelding, second; Big Medicine 3rd; time 1:46. Observanda broke her leg. Second race, one mile, five hundred yards, Belle won; Gold Bug 2nd.; Gabriel 3rd, time 2:17½. Third race, ⅝ mile. Compensation won; Zingara 2nd; Lady Roseberry 3rd, time 1:04½. Fourth race, handicap hurdle 1½ miles over six hurdles; Faustina won; Rose 2nd; The Stranger 3rd; time 2:59.

Tired of Life.

NEW YORK, August 6.—A special from Americus, Ga., gives the following particulars of a crime committed in Webster county, 20 miles west of that place, on the evening of August 4. It states that Woodson L. Gunnells, a well-to-do farmer, left home to visit a sick neighbor, and on returning at 10 o'clock, p. m., found his wife and nine of ten small children in a horrible sleep from the effects of morphia administered in lemonade by Mrs. Gunnells. There is no doubt that she prepared the fatal beverage and administered it to the children, and drank of it herself with the fatal intent of destroying them all. It was not actuated by any domestic trouble. Owing to the lapse of time before medical aid arrived, Mrs. Gunnells case was considered hopeless. It is also probable that three of the children will die.

Nominations.

DETROIT, MICH., August 6.—The Republican State Convention met at Jackson yesterday. David H. Jerome, of Saginaw, was nominated for Governor; Moreau S. Crosby for Lieutenant-Governor; William Humphrey for Secretary of State; Benjamin S. Pritchard, Treasurer. Candidates for other State offices were also nominated.

CINCINNATI, August 6.—The Democrats of the 10th Ohio District, at Sandusky yesterday, nominated Morgan Shaw for Congress.

DENVER, COL., August 6.—The Republican Territorial Convention, at Santa Fe, yesterday, nominated Hon. Tranquilino Luna for Congress.

Hanged.

NEW YORK, August 6.—Pietro Balbo, an Italian wife murderer, left prison at 4 o'clock this morning. Prayer at the gallows was offered by Father Anaclatus. Balbo was hanged at 8:17; at 8:21 o'clock he was lowered and his pulse was examined. He was taken down at 8:38.

Railroad Property Burned.

ST. LOUIS, August 6.—The freight houses of the Indianapolis and St. Louis Railroad and 2,000 feet of platform tracks, &c., and also fifty cars, most of them laden with merchandise was burned last night. One freight house had considerable cotton, grain and other valuable commodities in it awaiting shipment, all of which was destroyed. The loss of railroad property and freight is worth $100,000. The value of merchandise in the freight house is not known.

To be Reconciled.

NEW YORK, August 6.—A committee from Tammany Hall yesterday waited on the regular Democratic State Executive Committee, and it was finally resolved to heal all local differences, and unite in the coming campaign.

New York Democratic Committee.

NEW YORK, August 6.—The Democratic State Executive Committee is in session to-day at the St. James Hotel, W. A. Fowler in the chair. The Committee is completing final arrangements for the campaign.

Gladstone's Condition.

LONDON, August 6.—It was announced this morning that the premier Gladstone is convalescing satisfactorily.

MIDNIGHT REPORTS.

Political Committee Meetings.

NEW YORK, August 6.—The Republican National Executive Committee met again this morning in the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

The meeting was held with closed doors, but at its conclusion it was stated that a long discussion was had over the question of sending money and speakers to Southern States.

Views were heard of Representatives from Florida, North Carolina, Virginia, and West Virginia.

It was stated that a decision was arrived at to send aid to Florida.

No conclusion, it was stated, was arrived at in the cases of other Southern States.

The session of the Democratic State Executive Committee was resumed to-day in the St. James Hotel; the chair was occupied by Wm. A. Fowler, while David B. Hill acted as Secretary, and Daniel D. S. Lamont as Clerk.

Arrangements were perfected for getting the Committees on Finance, Speakers and the Campaign, to work at once.

It was stated this afternoon, by a person who is supposed to be reliable authority, that the members of a special committee of five to be selected by the Democratic State Committee from the Democratic party in this State to co-operate with the Executive Committee as provided for by the resolution passed at the meeting yesterday, would consist almost entirely of the members of the Kelly State Committee. This is to be done, it is said, in order to heal the breach in the party and settle their differences.

Liverpool Cotton Circular.

LIVERPOOL, August 6.—This week's circular of the Liverpool Cotton Brokers Association says that cotton closed steady on Friday, but the market reopened Tuesday with increased demand. It was quieter Wednesday, but rallied Thursday, and last week's quotations were maintained. American was in good daily demand at last week's prices. Business in sea island was moderate, without any quotable change in prices. Futures closed 1-32 higher Friday. They were neglected Tuesday and Wednesday, and the improvement was lost. Thursday there was a decidedly better feeling, and prices advanced 1-16d., declining, however, partially 1-32d. at the close.

Georgia State Convention.

ATLANTA, August 6.—In the Democratic State Convention, fifteen ballots have thus far been taken for Governor without a nomination. The ballots showed very little change from yesterday.

On the 19th ballot the vote stood as follows: Colquitt, 211; Lester, 58; Hardeman, 51; Gartrell, 15; and Warner 13. The necessary number of votes to secure a nomination is 234. The Convention adjourned until to-morrow.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Virginia Military Institute,

LEXINGTON, VIRGINIA.

Session Opens 1st September.

The Report of the Special Board of Examiners for 1875 closes thus:—

In conclusion, your Committee cannot too highly commend what has seemed to them the marked and distinguishing features of this Institution, the happy combination of the military system of instruction with the departments of science and of literary culture, and the more ennobling culture of the heart and soul. Nowhere else have we seen this combination so complete and perfect. We cannot speak of it too highly. It is such a system as fits a pupil for life and for death. Under its guidance he is sure to tread always the path of duty, virtue and honor.

Who is Your Wife?

A COMPLEX CONUNDRUM COLLOQUIALLY CONSIDERED.

BY WALDORF H. PHILLIPS.

We beg leave to announce that we have published, under the above title, a very novel and remarkable work. It is, in the form of fiction, a humorous and powerful satire on Divorce Laws and their complications. The author takes for his text a proposed new marriage ceremony, thus:—

"Do you take this woman to be your wife—until you are divorced?

"Do you take this man to be your husband—until you change your mind?

"Then, they whom I unite, let some Court put asunder."

The work is full of humor and keen satire; it is decidedly a most original and novel addition to American publications, and it is confidently believed will prove the literary sensation of the year. Price, in paper binding, 50c.; in cloth, 75c. Can be had of all Booksellers and News Dealers, or will be sent, postage paid, upon receipt of the price, by the publishers.

Lillington, Harnett county, August 12.

Fayetteville, Cumberland county, August 14.

Carthage, Moore county, August 16.

Ashboro, Randolph county, August 17.

Troy, Montgomery county, August 18.

Albemarle, Stanly county, August 19.

Monroe, Union county, August 20.

Wadesboro, Anson county, August 21.

Rockingham, Richmond county, August 23.

APPOINTMENTS.

There will be joint discussions by Gov. JARVIS and Judge BUXTON, the Democratic and Republican candidates for Governor at the following places:

Snow Hill, Monday, August 9th.

Wilson, Tuesday, August 10th.

COL. KENAN'S APPOINTMENTS.

Attorney-General KENAN will address the people at Grantham's, Wayne county, Saturday, August 14th.

Meadow, Johnston county, Monday, August 16th.

Superintendent SCARBOROUGH will also speak at Meadow on the 16th.

THE SCHOOL BILL.

Judge BUXTON is very much concerned (in his speeches) about the failure of the School Bill to become law after its passage by the last Legislature. He has sufficient sense to know that no harm came te the cause of education by the failure, but he may mislead others. There are newspaper editors, even, who are under the impression that the failure of that bill did away with a school tax and shut up the schools, while in reality the school tax was collected as usual and the school terms increased in length. The school income from taxation remained the same, unless, indeed, the increased valuation of property increased it, for the tax remained unchanged. The bill which failed did propose a slight increase of taxation for school purposes; from 8⅓ cents on property, and 25 cents on the poll to 10 cents on property and 30 cents on the poll, equal to some $50,000 a year. This would have been mere waste, and was saved to the people by the bill's failure to become law; and a greater saving was made to them in the matter of books. Under the stringent provisions of the proposed law an abrupt change would have been made in all the books used, to great expense and inconvenience, and in many cases exclusion from school. Under existing law the change will be gradual, and more easily made by large numbers of the poor.

The bill as passed, the reader must recollect, was not the excellent bill reported to the Legislature by the School Committee, and upon which so much intelligent labor had been bestowed by Superintendent SCARBOROUGH, Dr. MCLEAN, and Mr. ENGLISH. That bill complied with the constitutional provision and provided for schools of four months in the year. Necessarily, but not the less unfortunately, delayed in its report until the closing hours of the session, it was so amended as to leave us where we were with an additional burden of taxation. What we have now to do is to educate our coming Legislators into the knowledge that North Carolina voters, who also pay taxes, will pay with especial pleasure the school tax when it is made sufficient to be useful. A proper school tax, and proper schools in consequence, will give universal satisfaction to the people of North Carolina. They are poor, but they do not wish to stay poor; and they know that poverty will increase as ignorance increases. They are careful, but not niggardly; and being careful they complain of what they pay to no purpose outside the large towns; and not being niggardly they will with cheerfulness pay a larger sum that they may get the worth of their money. We think that if Judge BUXTON will abandon the attempt to mislead, and endeavor to lead his peculiar constituency to the payment of the poll tax which goes to the use of schools, he may do a service instead of an injury to the cause of popular education.

COMMISSIONER ALEXANDER.

Capt. SYDENHAM B. ALEXANDER, who was elected Commissioner of Agriculture by the Board of Agriculture at its session in this city on yesterday, is one of the master spirits of the greatest of all occupations in North Carolina. He is a young man, still on the bright side of forty years, a graduate of Chapel Hill, was a good private soldier in the Hornet's Nest Riflemen, a member of the 28th Regiment, a gallant Lieutenant of the 42nd, and Inspector General of HOKE'S Division with the rank of Captain, during the last days of the war. He came from the camp to the farm, and has since then pursued the quiet, useful life of a husbandman. His devotion to agriculture, guided by good talents and an ambition to elevate its condition in all its branches, has brought him honor as well as substantial reward. He has long been a Vice-President of the State Agricultural Society for the State at Large. In 1877 he was made Master of the State Grange of the Patrons of Husbandry and became ex-officio a member of the Board of Agriculture.

He was elected Senator from Mecklenburg county in 1878 without opposition, and made a useful and influential legislator. He was Chairman of the Committee on Agriculture, Mining and Statistics, and gave much of his time and talent to legislation devised to aid the farmers and advance their interests.

The Board chose well when they selected him to preside over the Department of Agriculture. He will bring to his high office, ability, industry, progressive ideas, experience, and a thorough honesty of purpose to serve his people and his State.

THE SEVENTH DISTRICT.

As will be seen by telegram printed elsewhere in this morning's NEWS, the Democratic Convention at Yadkinville, on Thursday nominated Hon. R. F. ARMFIELD for re-election to Congress. Governor ARMFIELD is one of the ablest men in the State, and has served his constituents faithfully at Washington as he had in the State Senate.

The District is composed of the counties of Alexander, Alleghany, Ashe, Davidson, Forsyth, Iredell, Rowan, Surry, Watauga, Wilkes and Yadkin, and elected Governor ARMFIELD two years ago by a majority of 1,103 over J. M. BROWER, Radical. His majority this year will be counted by thousands. In 1878 there was no contest.

"THE PEOPLE are not afraid of taxpaying if they can see the money put to a good use," truly says the Kinston Journal, urging the increase of the provision for common schools. And there is no better use to which their money can be applied. Let them send their legislators here next winter understanding their wishes and prepared to carry them out. All the questions likely to be urged upon the next Assembly are of very inferior importance when compared with this. Many of these questions are local; many call for mere transitory legislation. Few of them involve, by general consent, the interest of the whole State; none of them consequently very vital in their immediate bearing, or interests which may not be displaced or overshadowed in the progress of years. Not so with the subject of education. Its importance is pressing and permanent, and comes home to the household and heart of every citizen within our bounds. Upon its proper determination depends the material progress of our State—and what is far more, the welfare, moral, intellectual, and to a great degree spiritual, of present and future generations. It is one which has NO partisan aims; it has no political significance except in the broadest and most beneficent sense. It has for its object the good, the highest good of all without respect to age, sex, color or condition.

TEN YEARS make changes. In 1869 the Radicals levied a property tax of 77 cents on the $100 worth of property. In 1879, the Democratic Legislature levied a tax of 24 cents.

The Fifth District.

[Correspondence of THE RALEIGH NEWS.]

GREENSBORO, August 5, 1880.

EDITOR NEWS:—At the District Convention to-day that great and good man, General A. M. Scales, was nominated for Congress and received every vote on first ballot, 119, the convention was entitled to cast (Stokes not being represented). Next in order was the nomination of an Elector for the district, when Capt. F. C. Robbins, of Lexington, was nominated and received also 119 votes on first ballot.

Gen. Scales was sent for and accompanied to the convention by a committee of one from each county, and he and Captain Robbins made very telling speeches, after which Mr. Scott, of Rockingham, also responded to loud calls.

I take it as a good omen, the great enthusiasm of our best and wisest, indeed all classes of men, at the nomination of Hancock and English and our State ticket. Win—that is the watchword now; but to do so hard work has to be done.

Our County Convention meets on the 21st, when you will hear again of some of our best men being placed in the field.

I noticed in the Convention to-day, Col. T. M. Holt, Parker and Scott, of Alamance; Messrs. Horney and Walker, of Randolph; Reid, Webster, Settle, Scott, Cardwell and others of Rockingham; Henderson and Long, of Caswell; Robbins, Thomas and others of Davidson; Staples, Morehead, Caldwells, Scott, Gregory and others of Guilford. The meeting was very harmonious and the men assembled here to-day mean victory, both State and National.

The chairman announced the following Executive Committee for this Congressional District: Geo. H. Gregory, chairman, Guilford; J. W. Finch, Davidson; R. B. Glenn, Stokes; Col. D. Settle, Rockingham; E. S. Parker, Alamance; A. E. Henderson, Caswell; J. W. Cuningham, Person; A. S. Horney, Randolph.

The rain fall of the past two days has been a wonderful one, obstructing all travel or marketing and the market in consequence is quite bare.

The Lenoir Topic says that in Ashe county they are having splendid rains. The wheat crop is being threshed, and is turning out well. Corn is doing fine.

LITERARY GOSSIP.

MRS. MARY BAYARD CLARKE, EDITOR.

[All books received during the week will be mentioned by name in the next succeeding issue, and, if worthy of it, receive a longer notice after careful reading. They may be sent either by mail, or in packages of a dozen by express, and should always be addressed to Mrs. MARY BAYARD CLARKE, Newbern, N. C.]

DELPHIC DAYS. A POEM BY DENTON J. SNIDER.

The author of this book, Professor Snider, is of the St. Louis School of Philosophers, and is well known by his "System of Shakespeare," published in 1877, which placed him in the front ranks as a critic of English literature. In 1878 he went to Italy, and spent several months in Greece loitering on the banks of the River Castalia, and around Mount Parnassus and Delphi. The poem before us is the result of this sojourn. In it he gives, after the Greek fashion, in a grand rhythmical chant a philosophical essay full of exquisite pictures of nature and passionate bursts of song, with which he builds "a great Pantheon" out of "The ancient material of Orpheus,

Every stone of the fane shall be of itself a new song."

In this temple he proposes that all the Gods and Goddesses of Delphi shall dwell together "without strife or chiding." But he acknowledges that many Gods are driving him, and that the "wild throng" has unsettled him, as he often finds "sly little Eros in the train of Bacchus." In the fight, however,

"Eros is always the victor.
For the Nine assist him turning his flutter to hymns,
And a delicious melody flows from the flap of his pinions,
Which even Jove subdues to the sweet lull of its spell.
Yet I know not if Eros it be who has help from the Muses,
Or if the Muses it be who are by Eros inspired.
Ask me not to decide, I pray, the difficult question,
If I sing for my love, or if I love for my song.
Both are divine, I assure thee, and both have my fervidest worship.
Yes, love is divine, but divine also the pearl-dropping Muses;
Either may grapple my hand—then I am led by a God,
Nor forget in the Delphian background stands ever Apollo,
Who well knows what he does, whether he love or he sings."

We can understand and sympathise with the poet in the passage, and in his many delicious descriptions and touches, when he is—

"One with the Earth and the goodness of Nature."

But we must confess we cannot always follow the philosopher, and are thankful when Elpinike, the Greek maiden to whom he reads his verses, points to an Olive tree hanging over a precipice down which the olives fall and cannot be gathered, and says:—

"Thus are thy words sometimes, just like those olives, my friend,
For they fall down deep into darkness said Elpinike,
Whence I cannot for my life gather their forms or their sense.
So, let me frankly confess to thy face were also thy verses
Which you were reading just now—olives that fell in the gorge.
They may be good, but so deep they lie that I cannot get at them."

This passage gives us great comfort, for if Elpinike, the poet's "sweet mirror of nature"—the "Parnassian queen," for whom, in a dream, he built a new temple "on the banks of that hold the great Father of Waters," quakes "to go down into that rayless abyss," where his words have fallen, because she is "but a woman," it is no shame to us to do the same, though we confess the song is so beautiful we would even venture into the "dark chasms of the soul" to gather the fallen olives and fully comprehend the hidden meaning of the philosopher, as well as enjoy the beauties of the poet.

We are told that three legends as to the building of Apollo's temple at Delphi, are "gracefully asking our credence," all of which are true, "if thou but know what is true." First, it was built of a Laurel, "tree of Apollo's love,"

"Beautiful Daphne changed to a tree and then wrought to a temple."

Next, it was built by the bees, "and the mortar was honey," and last it was built by Vulcan on the Olympian heights and borne down to men,

"In a transport divine guided by Hermes the Swift."

It is not difficult to realize the truth of all three of these legends if we will only regard the Delphic temple as one reared by thought to the sun-god Truth, in the building of which divine art, nature and love have all had a hand.

The description of the Mississippi River is very fine.

"Monster huge of the West—tawny the flow of his mane——"
"Smeared is his face with the clay of each land that he laves in his passage,
Cloudy with turmoil his brow as he defiantly rolls,
Rearing his head from the stream he shakes his muddy old chaplet,
In some anger he seems ever to hurry along.
Hitherto he is said to have been the terror of Muses,
And they have fled from his banks, shrieking in fear or disgust."

But undismayed by this the poet leads the Greek Elpinike to its banks, where she found "a new Hellas," and—

"A new Parnassian garden
Filled with the fragrance of flowers grown in Apollo's domain."

Surely the poet must here typify that freedom of thought, which, like the rays of the Sun-God, should permeate the literature of science and theology, teaching each to say to the other—

"Do not suppose that harmonious living is not religion, Though it be not thine own, though too its source be remote."

"Full freedom for the entire race to search and know and work in whatever direction inclination may urge, or occasion would invite," says Dr. Maudsley, "seems to be now the most certain foundation of human progress."

This is the broad ocean into which the mightiest rivers of thought must flow.

Abraham Forest Morehead, in a poem of which North Carolinians have a right to be proud, beautifully compares the rise, course and debouch of the Mississippi to that of an ambitious spirit:

"Deem not then
That he—the mighty Mississippi—felt unmoved
His princely greatness. Fondly did he dream
That Mother Earth owned him her eldest born,
And gloried in his growth and gave him power
To be the lord o'er her dominions vast—
To move forever—and to swallow up
With his Saturnian jaws younger brood
Of Mountains, Lakes, and e'en his kindred streams,
But soon his visions fled, and with their flight
Came sudden terror and debasing awe.
Athwart his course the great Atlantic lay—
The youthful ocean glorying in his might—
From East to West, from South to North outspread,
Extended yet through earth his circling shores,
Amazed the Giant River halts, and looks
Upon the Giant Sea."

Professor Snider is at present among the Concord Philosophers, and lectured before the school the other day on "Shakspearean Criticism." Perhaps he may tell them how to realize his beautiful vision of the "divine Elpinike."

T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia, send in advance of publication sheets of the following novels:

The Stranglers of Paris, by Adolphe Belot. An interesting book for lawyers, as it treats of a strange murder and the search for the assassins, with their trial, which gives the entire course of French criminal practice.

Clorinda; or The Rise and Reign of His Excellency Eugene Rongon. A picture of the court of Napoleon the Third. The restless ambition of the hero and the revenge of a scorned woman are the main points of the story, which is from the powerful pen of Emile Zola.

Henry Greville gives another Russian novel, The Trials of Raissa, which pictures life and love in the far off dominions of the Czar.

One for Another, a society story of the "Dollar Series."

The Black Venus, by Adolphe Belot, the scene of which is laid in Central Africa, and on which the grand spectacular play of the Kiralfys is founded; and Sara Bernhardt's edition of the younger Dumas's Camille; or, The Fate of a Coquette, with a portrait of the great actress.

Gossip from Gotham.

[Correspondence of THE RALEIGH NEWS.]

NEW YORK, August 4, 1880.

EDITOR NEWS:—"The Fasting Fool," as THE NEWS very appositely designates him, has entered on the 38th day of his fast. Whatever may be thought of the utility of Dr. Tanner's abstinent performance, or the circumstances in which his experiment is made, the man has certainly shown a persistency which implies considerable will-power—enough rightly directed to win a battle or a party canvass, or to manage a railroad, or to do other things in which men become famous in doing. If he goes on until Saturday noon, as he has been going for 37 days, we may prepare for another struggle—a contest among the old school, the new school, the half-way school, the no school, the universal school, and all the rest, upon the question whether or not there is satisfactory proof that the fast has been wholly without food; and, if he has, the question whether or not the faster is in any sense a valuable contribution to the advance of science.

The lives and imaginations of our city population are beset by a new terror—horse car collisions. Life and limb in the horse car are no longer safe. That heretofore itinerant asylum of refuge from the toy pistol, the gravitating brick, the conquering sign and other perils that beset the walk and conversation of the metropolitan pedestrian, has itself become an engine of destruction. Two surface cars, through the obstinacy of their pilots or through some misunderstanding of signals, last night came into violent collision on the corner of Houston and Bleecker streets. Providentially, none of the passengers were killed outright, and the drivers ran away in time to escape being killed by the passengers.

While at Coney Island on Saturday I witnessed a game very popular with the young people of Raleigh, but in this instance played in quite an original manner. A party of young ladies and gentlemen were playing in knee-deep water the game of "Ring." The players were the jolliest folks imaginable as they sang, above the roar of the surf:

Go choose you East,
Go choose you West,
Go choose the one
That you love best.
If she's not there
To take your part,
Then choose the next one
To your heart.

An Innocent Abroad.

(Detroit Free Press.)

The other day the police at the Union Depot noticed a feeble-looking old man wandering in and out to kill time until his train should depart, and as he several times displayed quite a roll of bills, he was cautioned to look out for pickpockets and confidence men.

"Wouldn't anybody rob an old man like me, would they?" he innocently asked.

The warning was repeated, but he jogged around as before, and after a time was seen in consultation with two strangers, who had walked him around to the wharf. An officer got him away from them and angrily said:

"Didn't I warn you against strangers? Those fellows are after your money!"

"But how can they git it when I have it in my pocket and my hand on it all the time?"

"Well, you look out."

"Yes, I'll look out; but I don't want to be uncivil. When anybody talks to me I like to talk back."

The strangers soon had him on the string again, and in about a quarter of an hour they left him in a hurried manner, and he sauntered into the depot with his wallet in his hand.

"There! You've let 'em beat you!" exclaimed the officer. How much did you lend them?"

"Wall, they wanted twenty dollars," he slowly replied.

"And you handed it over, of course?"

"I give 'em a fifty-dollar bill and got thirty back."

"Well, you'll never see the bill again."

"I kinder hope not!" he chuckled as he drew down his eye. "It was a counterfeit which my son found in Troy, and being as I am very old and innocent and not up to the tricks of the wicked world, I guess I'll get into the cars before somebody robs me of my boots! If any one should come around looking for me please say I'm not at home!"

There is a pig at Jerseyville, Ill., with two distinct bodies, eight legs, and only one head. A horse at Granville, Ky., and a cat at Rochester, N. Y., have two perfect tails apiece. A dog at Milwaukee has six legs, and a calf at Omaha has no legs at all.

Flies, Frogs and Snakes.

[Louisville Letter in New York Sun.]

Not long after the Sun printed Frank Wilkeson's account of the frontier dipsomaniac who, to test his ability to conquer his passion for liquor, shut himself up in a lonely cabin with a jug of poisoned whisky beside him, and was found dead the next day by friends who came to look for him, several of the eminent gentlemen who gather every Sunday in the big rotunda of the Galt House were talking of the story.

"I never knew but one man," said the Colonel, "who, having an over-mastering mania for liquor, was really cured of it, and that was Asa Bayard. Most of you are acquainted with him, I'm sorry to say, for since he stopped drinking he plays a most astonishing game of poker.

"Did none of you ever hear of how Asa was cured? He told it to me one day when I happened to ask him how he broke his leg—you know he walks lame. You haven't heard it? Not that any of you needs the moral; but the story is instructive, and I'll tell it so that the Major can make use of it the next time he runs for Congress and goes in for the Sunday law.

"Asa and I were walking down Third street as I asked the question. 'How'd I break my leg?' said he. 'It's a solemn experience, Colonel, surely.'

"We were on our way to the room, and, as the other three hadn't come yet, Asa pensively shuffled the cards and continued—I'll try to tell the story just as he did.

"'I'd been drinkin' harder'n usual that month,' said Asa, 'and went into the Willard Hotel one evening to brace up with one square drink, meaning afterward to knock off for a while, at any rate. Jimmie poured out a tumblerful before I raised my finger. 'Take out that fly, Jimmie,' said I. 'There's no fly there, Asa,' said he, looking at me a' kind of curious.

"'I looked at Jimmie and then at the licker, and then I put the tumbler down. 'Reckon I'll go without it to-night, Jimmie,' said I.

"'I went straight to my room. 'Twas up in the third story, and looked out on the back court. I must ha' got to sleep right off, for I don't remember nothing more till I woke up by hearing a queer noise on the stairs. It was like the noise of ten thousand little canes a tapping on the foot-boards. Well, I opened wide my eyes, but it was as dark in that room as Clarence Prentice used to say it was when he went down in the bottomless pit at Mammoth Cave.

"All of a sudden, an' you may not believe me, but the door opened, and that room was as light as though there was a million suns a-shinin', exceptin' that it was a steady light and didn't dazzle. I sorter raised up on my elbow, and bless me if there didn't come a-marchin' into the room a brass band, and the musicians wasn't none of 'em taller'n my little finger. Follerin' the musicians was an officer on horseback no bigger'n the players, and the horse small accordin'. Behind him come a marchin' in a company o' little soldiers. They marched and they marched, while I was lookin' at them all the time, until they filed opposite my bed. Then the Colonel he got down off his horse, an' you may not believe me, but as soon as he struck the floor he began to grow and grow until he was as much as eight feet tall. I kept a watchin' him all the time, till he stepped up on my bed and put his finger in his vest pocket and took out a string. Then he fetched out a screw from his pants pocket an' screwed it in the ceilin' over his head. Then he stepped down on the floor again and took one o' them little soldiers by the nape o' the neck an' tied one end o' the string around his neck and the other to the screw in the ceilin', and left him danglin' there. Then he stepped down again, and I'm a liar if, as soon as he touched the floor, he didn't begin to grow smaller and smaller till he wasn't no bigger'n he was before. Then he says, "Forward, march!" and the band began to play, and the soldiers marched out toward the door.

"'You may not believe me, but I kept a watchin' him all the time without sayin' a word. But I couldn't help noticin' one little soldier who was a-watchin' me and was in the front rank. He was on the outside, and after the Colonel got out the door he just fell back one file at a time until he and me was alone.

"'He drew back to the side of my bed, and says he: "Asa, put down your foot."

"'I puts down my foot and the little cuss got a-straddle of it. "Now lift up, Asa," says he.

"'I lifted my foot up in bed and the little soldier runs up to my ear. "Asa," says he, confidential, "did you see what the Colonel did to that man?" "Yes," says I, "I was a-watchin of him all the time." "Well," says he, "Asa, I'm the only friend you've got among all these soldiers, and I'm a-telling you the honest truth. That Colonel's a-coming back in a minit, an' he's goin' to serve you in the same way."

"'You may believe I was scared. "But what must I do?" says I. "You must get right out of that window," says he.

"That was all till I woke up, two or three hours after, and Dr. Dave Yandell was settin' my leg." "How did it happen, Asa?" says he, and I told him the whole story. "It was the jim-jams, Asa," said he, and says I, "I reckin it was;" and I hain't never touched a drop since."

"That's a case," said the Colonel, "where good came out of evil—leastwise, it would be that kind of a case if Asa didn't play such an all-fired good game of poker."

"Your story reminds me of another like it," said the Governor, "except that my friend didn't live long after his lesson.

"It was just after Jeff Davis killed Nelson here in the Galt House, and Bragg was marching around through Kentucky. There was altogether too much drinking in those days—more than there is now, by a good deal. War times seemed to throw everybody off his balance. You all remember poor Lew Harrison, who was killed under Bragg at Perryville? Well, Lew came up to Frankfort on leave to see his sweetheart over in Woodford. For some reason the girl had jilted him for another fellow while Lew was off in the army, and it nearly broke his heart. He took to drinking heavily, and we were afraid that he might not get back to his command, and he would be disgraced.

"I suppose it was a cruel joke that we got up to save him, but we did it for the best. One of the fellows had a horned frog that somebody had sent him from Texas. We got the ugly little beast one day and put him on one end of the counter at the Capital Hotel bar. Then some one went for Lew. As soon as he had filled his glass he caught sight of the frog. 'What in the devil are you keeping that thing here for?' said he to the barkeep. 'What thing, Capt. Lew?' said the boy. 'Why that d——d frog,' said Lew. 'There isn't any frog there, Capt. Harrison,' said the boy, who had been posted.

"Lew looked at the boy and then at the frog, and then back at the boy again. Then he turned to us, and we all looked grave and sorrowful. He put down his glass untasted, went direct to his room, and the next morning started to join his regiment. Poor fellow! I reckon he found more comfort in that last battle than he did in the forgetfulness he got out of liquor."

"It's curious about frogs and snakes with men who have tremens," said the Judge. "Why shouldn't they eat fish or fowl or good red herring, or lions and tigers? You remember that Jeff Davis was cured of drinking by Lew Williams, who hung up a frog by a string from the mosquito-ring over Tom's bed. Tom's father gave Les a thoroughbred for that trick.

"But I once had a fellow brought before me raving with tremens, and as soon as he caught sight of me on the bench he shook from head to foot, put up his hands before him and yelled out: 'Put horns on them horns before he hooks me.' He took me for the devil.'

"That reminds me," said a lieutenant from McCracken county, "in the fall of '57 I fetched up in Mobile. I had run out on the Quaker City to join Walker in Nicaragua; was captured and brought back. After my release I went into a barber shop kept by Prince Alf, a well-known yellow boy, to get shaved. Alf had a small chinchilla monkey chained in the window. While I was waiting my turn a lank cotton broker from up the Alabama came in, pulled off his coat, and threw himself in an easy chair. He had evidently been on a hard spree, and was going to taper off. As he settled himself in the chair he closed his eyes, and relapsed into a quiet reverie. A moment afterward the monkey rattled his chain, and the broker, opening his eyes, saw him for the first time. The broker came out of his reverie. His eyes began to dilate, his breath grew short and his fingers quivered like the stems of aspen leaves. The monkey leaped on his lap, and he seemed paralyzed with horror. His face became ashen, and he looked like a man struck with death. In a few seconds a barber came and cuffed the monkey back to his casement, and shortened his chain. The cringing broker drew a long breath, murmured 'My God, what a relief!' and again settled himself in his chair. When shaved, he gave Alf a dollar. It was evident that he misinterpreted the smiles on the faces of those around him, for he sped from the shop without waiting for his change."

"I once knew of a case," said the Major, "when the victim had a vision that stood between him and murder, though, indeed, it cost him his own life. His father had been killed in a shooting affray down in Shelby, and his mother died afterward. I believe what I candidly believe was a broken heart. The son grew up shiftless and drunken. One day, delirious after a long spree and in a trifling quarrel, he drew a pistol on one of his companions. He had the drop on the other man, of course, and had him fairly covered over the heart. There wasn't time for us to rush, and we held our breaths. I believe he had his finger on the trigger when he dropped his weapon, and threw his hands up over his face. It was his last motion. But the other fellow, drunk too, had got out his pistol in the meanwhile, and had him before we could stop him. When we picked the body up the boy was dead, but there were tears in his eyes. It happened that the man who slew him had a wife and estimable wife, and I don't know, but I think that the face of his mother came before the young fellow at that fatal moment when he dropped his pistol. I hope it sobered him in time, and that he was purer for that last vision."

"What did you do with the murderer?" some one asked.

"Oh, he spared the crowd the trouble of a hanging," said the Major. "He died that night in jail in agony. The trouble had got in its work in good season."

WAIF:—

The census man has found a lady in Troup county, Ga., who is only 12 years of age, but is married to a large, fine-looking buxom woman, and they are living peaceably and happily out on a farm. The boy is a very thrifty young man.

When young Jeff first came up to his father told him that it would be time when being helped at dinner to say to the host, "Half that, if you please." It happened that at the first dinner to which he was invited a sucking pig was one of the dishes. The host, pointing with the knife to the young porker, asked, "Will Mr. Jeff, will you have this, our favorite dish, or haunch of mutton?" To which, recollecting his first lesson, he replied, "Half that, if you please," to the consternation of all present.

THE DAILY NEWS.

RALEIGH, N. C.

SATURDAY.....AUGUST 7, 1880.

To Our City Subscribers.

Mr. T. L. BEACHAM has been placed in charge of the subscription list and delivery of the papers in Raleigh, and will attend to canvassing and collecting for the same. Every subscriber will have the paper delivered before 7 o'clock each morning.

The Weather Yesterday.

Raleigh & Gaston and Raleigh & Augusta Air-Line Railroad—Cheap freight and passenger rates between the North and South.

TOWN AND COUNTY NOTES:—

No old bonds yesterday.

No marriage license issued yesterday.

Wake Superior Court meets on Monday, Judge Graves presiding.

These nights (and days too) are elegantly cool and pleasant for sleeping.

Lena White, colored, was sent to board with Sheriff Nowell yesterday.

Julius A. Gray, Esq., President of the C. F. & Y. V. R. R. was in the city yesterday.

Overcoats were rather in demand yesterday, owing to the sudden change in the weather.

Mr. Alfred Williams, of Panther Branch township, is very ill at his home in that township.

Dr. J. M. Worth, our State Treasurer, returned to the city on Thursday last from a visit home.

Mr. Simeon Utley, of Panther Branch township, died on Wednesday last at quite an advanced age.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Guthrie and child, of Fayetteville, are in the city, stopping at the Yarborough.

Gov. Jarvis arrived in the city yesterday, and leaves to-day to meet Judge Buxton at Kinston.

The butcher-stalls in the market have just received a coat of paint and are very much improved thereby.

The Treasurer yesterday paid $50 to the Secretary of the Poplar Tent Fair Association, of Cabarrus county.

Much damage is reported to the bottom lands by the floods. It is feared that the bridges will be swept away.

One firm in this city sold on last Thursday over fifty dollars worth of water-proof overcoats. Thus much for wet weather.

The city looked quite dull yesterday, as our country friends found it rather unpleasant to travel in the rain and stayed at home.

Louis H. Blair & Co., of Richmond, Va., and Lowrenberg, Jacobs & Co., of Norfolk, Va., took out drummers' license yesterday.

We were glad to see Mr. A. P. Bryan and Messrs. Willie Tucker and Bobbie Williamson yesterday. They had just returned from their tour North.

We would call attention to the attractive advertisement of the Raleigh & Gaston and Raleigh & Augusta Air Line Railroads which appears in this issue.

One drunk and down was allowed to sleep off the effects for twelve hours in the guard house. The Mayor also got away with two affrays in a way to make the belligerents sorry.

A special train will go to Kinston today, leaving at 7 o'clock this morning, and will arrive here, on its return, at 9 this evening. This is convenient for those who wish to hear the joint discussion there to-day.

An affray occurred in the city yesterday afternoon wherein a pistol was used. Two shots were fired by Charles Howard at Isaac Hirschberg without doing any damage. The parties were held to appear before the Mayor this morning.

An abstract of listed taxables was yesterday received at the Auditor's office from H. C. Sharpe, Register of Deeds of Hertford, as follows: General taxes, $1,624.-13; special taxes, $1,613.80; school taxes, $2,704.18; county taxes, $6,332.45.

From every direction the intelligence is that the rains of Thursday have done vast damage. The Haw River, at the crossing of the Raleigh & Augusta Air-Line Railroad, was higher than it has been known for years. The Deep River also was very high, and the destruction to the crops on the thousands of acres, for one hundred and fifty miles along the banks of the Cape Fear, must be heavy. The new bridge across the Neuse at Pool's Mill, we learn, has been carried away. In all parts of the State the crops were magnificent, and we greatly fear that our farmers have been heavily damaged.

DIED.—Mr. George Horton died at his residence in this city, of consumption, yesterday at noon. He had been for a long time a sufferer from this terrible disease.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.—At the regular monthly meeting last night, the following business was transacted:

A pump was ordered to be placed at the corner of Cabarrus and Harrington streets.

A crossing was ordered to be put down across Fayetteville street, at the corner of J. P. Gulley's store.

A survey was ordered to be made of the colored cemetery, and a plot made out with the sections and squares in such sections numbered; also that the unimproved part be laid out in walks and drives.

The committee on the purchase of a Double Cylinder Chemical Fire Engine made its report. On motion the report was laid on the table.

License was granted to Daniel Coogan to retail liquors.

On motion of Alderman Ellison, an outfit was ordered to be furnished the Rescue Fire Company. The Chief of the Fire Department was appointed to make the purchase.

FORMS OF GOVERNMENT AS AFFECTED BY SLEEPING ROBES.—In Mr. Gladstone's latest book, "The History and Science of Political Economy," he advances the theory, giving the skeleton of an idea as it were, that the development of the science of government which has marked the progress of the last few centuries, and the still greater development which the same science is hastening to achieve, has its basis primordially in the adoption of retiring robes by the male of the human species, and that said development has progressed in direct ratio as the garment referred to has approached in length that of its feminine correlative. It is matter for sadness that the hand of the great originator of this theory will probably be palsied in death before he can amplify his truly startling theory. As such calamity is impending, however, we have delved somewhat into the subject and will try our 'prentice hand on what should have been the work of the great journeyman.

In pursuing our investigations we were positively startled by the many reasons we found for subscribing to Mr. Gladstone's theory; but as THE NEWS deals chiefly with facts, we shall content ourselves with presenting the facts, and allowing our readers to form their own opinions, as they would do anyhow.

It is probable that the Tudors were the most despotic rulers that ever sat on the English throne, and that Elizabeth was the most despotic of the family; but it was during her reign that the theory of human liberty, of self-government, began to assume shape. In 1594 Queen Elizabeth presented to her then favorite, the Earl of Leicester, the first garment devoted exclusively to purposes of repose of which history makes mention. That it was of unfortunate brevity we learn from the account, given by one of the chroniclers of the time, of the fire whereby the west wing of the Earl's castle of Kenilworth was destroyed. He says in his quaint old way, "upon ye firrst alarum ye greate Erle rushed outen from his appartement y'clad in ye nyghte shyrrtte, whilke ye Queen had gived him, withouten aught else, and as ye shyrrtte was full short he did present a most woeful aspect."

From this basis the length of the robes referred to has increased, and freedom of speech and thought has increased with its length. Mr. Jefferson's sturdy Republicanism, it has been found, was attributable almost entirely to this circumstance. In his day the garment in question had attained a length which brought it almost to the knee; and the gigantic intellect of this truly remarkable man soon discovered that only the most liberal freedom of speech would enable one to express his depth of inward sentiment when in the still watches of the night the innate diabolism of the seemingly harmless article woke into activity. Mr. Jefferson felt that an indissoluble union with the strait-laced of the New England States must inevitably act as a restriction on the expressions which became absolutely necessary when a man found his nocturnal attire, so to speak, rolled tightly up just under his armpits, and by some mysterious agency pulled back at the throat with a force which threatened destruction to breath or buttons or both. In his own language, used in a letter to one B. Franklin, who seems to have run a newspaper in Philadelphia, out of which the letter was unavoidably crowded by the press of other matter, "I am satisfied that an union which has, for its basis, either the curtailment of the longest liberty (evidently referring to the subject in hand) in one direction, or of the widest liberty in the other, can only be an union founded on a wrong basis, an union of hands, not hearts; and such an union must eventuate in discord, violence, wrong, and failure." It is thus seen what the opinions of the sage of Monticello were on this subject, and the mighty renown his thoughts have won him must give any opinion of his the weight of authority.

In reasoning from analogy, Mr. Gladstone's theory receives still stronger confirmation. It has long been settled that pockets increase and multiply as their human adjunct ascends the scale of intellect and civilization. Thus the bushman has at best a merely embryonic pocket, while the whole suit of a Parisian or Broadway dandy is fairly undermined with them. It is true that the American small-boy at first sight presents a startling exception to this rule; but an investigation will disclose the fact that the pockets of this hitherto unclassed animal, while of abnormal holding capacity, correspond accurately in number to his place in the scale of development.

The analogy between pockets and the subject more directly under consideration is obvious to the meanest intellect, and this analogy must add great force to the startling theory advanced by Mr. Gladstone.

DOGS.—The following ordinance was passed at the meeting of the Board last night:

Be it ordained, That all unlicensed dogs running at large, or wherever found in the city, shall be subject to be taken up by the police and impounded in the pound.

That it shall be the duty of the Chief of Police, not less than once during each week, to have a canvass of the city made with a sufficient force of hands detailed by the Street Commissioner, under supervision of a policeman, and to capture and secure all such unlicensed dogs.

The owners of such dogs whenever known shall be notified and the dog shall be kept for two days in the pound. If the owner does not reclaim by paying the tax and fifty cents costs, then any other person may pay the tax and costs, and become the owner of any dog in the pound. All dogs not redeemed shall be killed under the direction of the Chief of Police with as little suffering as possible. The word dog wherever used shall include bitches.

THE SUPREME COURT.—The entire session of the Court yesterday was occupied in the trial of the case of Mark Young vs. W. W. Rollins et als, from McDowell. The argument will be concluded to-day. The case has occupied three days in its consideration.

HO! FOR KINSTON!—The excursion train leaves the depot this morning for Kinston at 7 o'clock. Fare for the round trip two dollars. The train will return to Raleigh to-night at 9 o'clock. Now draw on your duster and take a palm leaf along, for they say that Gov. Jarvis is making things warm where he goes.

Seventh District Convention.

ARMFIELD AND KLUTTZ.

[Special Telegram to THE RALEIGH NEWS.]

STATESVILLE, August 6, 1880.

The District Convention met at Yadkinville yesterday.

Hon. R. F. Armfield, of Iredell county, was nominated for re-election to Congress on the seventh ballot, and the nomination was made unanimous.

Theo. F. Kluttz, Esq., of Rowan county, was nominated for Presidential Elector.

North Carolina Census.

THE FIRST DISTRICT.

[Reported for THE RALEIGH NEWS.]

The census returns for the First District of which Henry D. Roberson, Esq., of Martin county is Supervisor, foot up a population of 223,561. The same counties had in 1870, 176,460 inhabitants; increase of 47,101. The returns by counties for each year are annexed:—

	1880.	1870.
Beaufort,	17,512	13,011

The increase in the three Districts is 248,974, a trifle less than 33⅓ per cent.

THE BOARD OF AGRICULTURE.—There was an adjourned meeting of the Board of Agriculture at the Executive office yesterday.

Governor Jarvis returned from the East by the 12:30 p. m. train and presided at the meeting.

A good deal of routine business was transacted.

Dr. Ledoux's report of the Convention of Chemists, held at Washington City on the 28th ult., at which he represented North Carolina by request of the Board, was read and received.

The principal point of interest in it is that a uniform system of analyzing fertilizers was adopted for the government of the various control stations in the United States. Great interest was manifested in the purposes of the Convention, and it bids fair to become a permanent scientific association.

The election of a Chemist was deferred until the next quarterly meeting.

Capt. S. B. Alexander was elected Commissioner of Agriculture, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Col. Polk.

There were several prominent gentlemen candidates, but the honor was conferred upon Capt. Alexander. His reputation as an agriculturist is as wide as the State, and his election will give unusual satisfaction to the farmers of North Carolina.

The Board adjourned at a late hour.

WAKE POLITICS:—

MR. EDITOR:—The course of political affairs cannot in any good cause go forward without fit instruments. That being the case, the name which I have to propose I am assured will please the people, particularly our country fellow-citizens. They are awake to the fact that the city of Raleigh, through one or more of its young men, deserves recognition on the ticket. The young Democrats of your city are more active during a campaign, do more work and gain more votes than any other class of our people.

I, together with many others, am in favor of placing the name of B. B. Lewis, Jr., on our ticket as one of the candidates for the lower House. He is a thorough-paced politician and will do good service to the county; a fitter instrument we cannot select. All pretences to neutrality in the next campaign are justly exploded, we are able and must wage an aggressive warfare, keeping our political enemies constantly on the defensive, and as they are by no means encased in invulnerable armor, we should be confident of defeating them in November. Mr. Lewis, if nominated, will contribute largely in accomplishing this very object. QUILL-PEN.

The Census of Ashe County.

[From the Lenoir Topic.]

The following statistics of Ashe county, are taken from the late census—1880: Number of inhabitants, 14,444; number of farms, 1,992; manufacturing establishments, such as boot and shoe, cabinet, wagon and blacksmith shops—the production of which are $500 and upwards, annually, 26; saw mills, producing annually $500 and upwards, 11; flour and grist mills, 18; tan yards, 4; slaughter houses, 1; copper mines, worked by stock companies, 2; deaths, 113; paupers at expense of county, 23; prisoner in county jail, 1; blind, 16; deaf mutes, 16; idiots, 33; houses, inhabited, 2,448; families, 2,563. In 1870 the number of inhabitants in the county was 9,573, hence it will be seen that Ashe county has increased about 60 per cent. in the last ten years. It is doubtful whether the same can be said of any other county in the State. It may be further stated that this county has not only advanced this per centum with respect to its population, but the per centum has been even greater in every branch of industry pertaining to the increase and development of the mineral and agricultural resources of the country. In short, it may not be rash to assert that Ashe is destined to become ere long "the Garden Spot" of the Old North State.

Cumberland married in July four white and five colored couples.

What North Carolinians are Doing.

GLEANINGS FROM STATE EXCHANGES.

Cumberland's county commissioners, elected on the 2d inst., are Messrs. A. A. McKethan, Cader Parker, John Shaw, Jas. M. Jessup, W. H. Melvin. The tax assessments for the year, as reported in the Examiner, are 34½ cents on the $100 dollars worth of property for county purposes, and 33⅓ cents for old debt; on income 1 per cent.; on polls $2. On subjects described in schedule B., a tax of like amount as levied by the State, to be appropriated to public schools. Total valuation of the real and personal property of Cumberland county, $2,557,200. Total number of polls listed 2,994. Number of polls returned as delinquent 109.

The Charlotte Observer of the 6th says that "the recent heavy rains have swollen all the smaller streams in the vicinity of Charlotte, and already caused considerable damage to crops. The farmers who were in the city yesterday were apprehensive of still greater injury. The Catawba river was out of its banks, and as advices from the mountains indicate that the rain has been general and heavy in that region, a real August freshet is fully anticipated. The rain gauges here indicate nearly four inches rain-fall yesterday. The railroads have not as yet suffered any considerable damage."

STATE POLITICAL ITEMS:—

The Fayetteville Examiner reports the Harnett primaries as resulting in 207 for Coffield, 168 for Brantly, 199 for McDougald, as candidates for the nomination for the House.

Alexander county has nominated for the House of Representatives, James B. Pool; Register of Deeds, John Harrington; Sheriff, J. W. Linney; Coroner, D. Boone Little; Surveyor, J. F. Sharpe.

Wilkes county, we learn from the Statesville Landmark, has nominated for the House of Representatives R. A. Spainhour and Alfred Warren, and recommended Dr. Tyre York for nomination by the Senatorial Convention. Anderson M. Church is the nominee for Sheriff, and W. W. Barber for Register.

The Charlotte Observer says that "a Hancock, English, Jarvis, and Dowd club has been organized at Laurinburg with seventy members and a fair prospect of an increase. The officers are as follows: President, A. F. Bizzell; Vice-Presidents, H. F. Northrop, Peter McRae, and Daniel Middleton; Secretaries, P. B. Clark and C. Jeff Rivenbark; Treasurer, J. D. Nutt."

Theo. F. Davidson, Esq., has been renominated for Senator from Buncombe and Madison. The Asheville Citizen truly says that "Mr. Davidson's first service in official life was as Senator in the late Assembly, and no man in any position ever served a people more conscientiously, fearlessly and honestly or more effectively and influentially than he. His independence in thought and action, his strict conservatism on all questions, his utter fairness on all occasions, his fidelity to all interests, provoked the confidence and admiration of his fellow-representatives and constituents; and his renomination, above all, the hearty endorsement which he receives from all, is a worthy testimonial for services most worthily performed. No district, we undertake to say, will be more ably or faithfully represented than the fortieth, in the person of Mr. Davidson. His immediate constituents, his section and State will be proud of him."

Washington Politics.

(Special to the Baltimore Sun, 6th.)

WASHINGTON, August 5.—It is said at Republican headquarters that subscriptions of money are coming in very rapidly from Republican officeholders in response to the circulars sent out. Under an arrangement with the national committee the money thus obtained is to be equally divided between that committee and the congressional committee. The indications are that the Republicans intend to send large sums of money into Indiana, and in addition to this they will flood the State with campaign documents. As yet the Democratic Congressional Committee has not sent out a single document, although a number are in preparation and will be speedily issued. Several experienced journalists have been employed to make a thorough examination of Gen. Garfield's record since he entered the House, and to write up a concise history of the weak points for publication as a campaign document. The Southern Republican Association will be very much weakened by the withdrawal of ex-Senators Pool, of North Carolina, and Fowler, of Tennessee, who have come out in favor of Hancock. The only comment made upon their action in Republican quarters is that they are disappointed applicants for office under the present administration.

General Garfield's Progress.

[From the New York Herald, 5th.]

Since Andy Johnson "swung round the circle" there has been nothing so verbose as General Garfield's progress from Mentor to New York, unless it may be President Hayes' almost forgotten Southern tour at the beginning of his administration. The profusion of speeches on both of those previous journeys, however, possessed a merit to which none of yesterday's can lay claim. They all touched important subjects which then were uppermost in the minds and hearts of their hearers. The oratory which dripped yesterday at every railroad station from the rear platform of the car which brought the Republican Presidential candidate across this State was utterly insipid so far as concerns his contributions to it. Most of them were rather clumsy compliments to the crowd for gathering to look at him, and we find none that needs comment on account of its relation to any serious matter in debate in politics. Few men in a position which makes the public eager to catch every one of their words ever have talked oftener and said less that deserves remark within the same time.

What Radicalism Cost the South.

[Louisville Courier-Journal.]

Let us see what the indebtedness of the States charged with repudiation was at the close of the war and what Republican rule did for them up to the period of the warning of carpet-baggery and its attendant robbery. Here is the showing:

"Virginia—Debts and liabilities at the close of the war, $31,144.59. Debts and liabilities January 1, 1872, $45,480,-142.21.

"North Carolina—Debts and liabilities at the close of the war—principal, $9,690,-500: interest, $1,261,316; whole amount, $10,951,816. Debts and liabilities January 1, 1872, $34,887,467 85.

"South Carolina—Debts and liabilities at the close of the war, $5,040,000. Debts and liabilities January 1, 1872, $ 9,168,-914 47.

"Georgia—Debts and liabilities at the close of the war, nominal. Debts and liabilities June 1, 1871, $50,637,500.

"Florida—Debts and liabilities at the close of the war, $221,000. Debts and liabilities January 2, 1872, $15,763,-447 54.

"Tennessee—Debts at the close of the war, $20,105,606 66. Debts and liabilities January 1, 1872, $45,688,263 46.

"Arkansas—Debts and liabilities at the close of the war, $4,036,952 87. Debts and liabilities January 1, 1872, $19,761,-265 62.

"Louisiana—Debts and liabilities at the close of the war, $10,099,074 34. Debts and liabilities January 1, 1872, $50,540,306 91.

"Texas—Debts and liabilities at the close of the war, nominal. Debts and liabilities January 1, 1872, $20,361,010 61.

"Alabama—Debts and liabilities at the close of the war, $5,939,658 87. Debts and liabilities January 1, 1872, $38,382,-967 34."

Here we have $284,000,000 of indebtedness piled on these States by the robber Republican governments, the greater portion of which represents actual stealage and fraudulently issued bonds.

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS:—

England is likely to have trouble nearer home than Afghanistan. Disturbances are again expected in Ireland, and it is reported that a large military force is to be sent there.

The number of deaths in New Orleans last week was only 76, of which 11 were under the age of one year, and two over the age of ninety. The population of New Orleans is 216,000, so that the death rate is only a little over 18 in a thousand per annum, which is regarded as a remarkably low per centage.

The census returns from fifty-one of the fifty-eight parishes in Louisiana show a gain of 146,466 over 1870, an average increase of thirty per cent. Only one parish, St. Tammany, has decreased in population. The parishes yet to hear from contained over one-third of the population of the State ten years ago—about 249,-000. If the same rate of increase is maintained in them as in the parishes heard from, the full census returns from Louisiana will show a population of about 960,000.

The Colored Vote.

[From the New York Journal of Commerce.]

NEW YORK, July 26, 1880.—In Mr. Arthur's letter of acceptance he says: "As a great part of its work of reconstruction, the Republican party gave the ballot to the emancipated slave as his right and defence. A large increase in the number of members of Congress and of the Electoral College from former slaveholding States was the immediate result." I have always known that the representation in Congress was in proportion to the population. Of course the more votes the greater the population was supposed to be. But the slaves were included in the census (three-fifths I think), so where should the great increase come from?

Reply.—By the census of 1870 Alabama, Florida, Georgia and Virginia, each gained one member in the College; Arkansas and Louisiana each two members; Texas gained four and Missouri six, but owing chiefly to the increase of their white population. South Carolina lost one member. The total gain on account of the full reckoning of the colored population was six or seven members. The Electoral College in 1860 consisted of 303 members; in 1872 of 366 members. Of the 63 gain, say seven at the most were added by freeing the slaves. Doubtless General Arthur thinks that even this small number is "a large increase" when it is likely to be counted against him in the Presidential contest.

About the Weather.

(From the Detroit Free Press.)

At the last meeting of the Lime Kiln Club the Secretary announced a communication from Bushnell, Ia., stating that a local debating society of colored men had got stuck on a question and desired the assistance of the club. The society had found itself unable to agree as to which of the many almanacs put forth contained the most trustworthy weather predictions, and it had been agreed to adopt the one in use by the Lime-Kiln Club.

"Gem'len," said the President in reply, "I fink dat de inhabitants of dis kentry am payin' altogeder too much 'tenshun to dis wedder queshun. Dar's a groan o' dispair when it's hot, and a growl o' displeasur when it's cold. If it rains somebody raises a row, an' if it's dry somebody else has a bone to pick wid de powers above. Ebery red-headed, one-hoss white man—ebery broken down old two-cent darkey, has got de ideah in his head dat de Lawd am boun' to send him long jist de sort o' wedder he wants, no matter 'bout de rest of de kentry. De ole man Rubottom, libin' up dar by my cabin, has got about fifteen cents worf o' garden truck back of his house, an' when it's hot or cold or wet or dry he am so agitated dat he forgits dat any odder soul in dis kentry has sot out an onion or planted a 'tater. Mo' dan fifty y'ars ago I come to de conclushun dat I mus' put up wid sich wedder as de Lawd gim me, no matter whedder it brought on chilblains or rheumatics, an' it was a great burden off my mind. I take it jist as it comes, keepin' de ole umbrella in good repair, an' I doan' know nuffin' 'bout almanacks an' I doan' want to."

The children at Long Branch, according to a correspondent of the Louisville Courier-Journal, occasionally pick up a startling word from the profane hackmen, and use it innocently. The following is an illustration: "A diminutive girl of five years dropped in to dinner. She was taken aback by a piece of blackberry pie, an unknown dish until that moment. Taking up some of the juice in a teaspoon she exclaimed, 'What a booful color. I don't know what he is; looks 'ite beets; 'tisn't. I don't care what he is; it's d—d good!'"

Wanted 'em all Pulled.

[Little Rock Gazette.]

Yesterday a fleshy woman went into a dentist's office and asked the representative of the art that hangs out pictures of big teeth if he were busy.

"No, marm. Have a seat. What can I do for you?"

"De fust fack what I wants settled is, has yer got plenty ob time?"

"Oh yes, time enough to satisfy any one."

"Look in my mouf," and she produced an opening strikingly suggestive of a closet door. "Does yer see dem teef?"

"Yes; fine lot of teeth. Need cleaning though. Can fix you up all right."

"Yes, but ef yer cleans dem teef yer'll hab ter do de work arter I'ze gone. I wants 'em all pulled out."

"That would be an outrage. You haven't a decayed tooth in your head," said the dentist, examining the mouth.

"In my head? I hain't got no teef in my head. Dis is my head," pointing to the place where her wool vegetated, "and dis is my mouf," pointing to the closet-door imitation. "Now is you 'pared ter say dat my teef is in my head ur mouf.'"

"In your mouth, I should think. But why do you want them extracted?"

"Dun what wid? Extracted? White man, what's yer tryin' ter gin me? I'se been heah too long fur yer ter waste yer grammar an' 'rithmetic on me."

"I mean why do you wish them pulled? Do they ache?"

"No, sar. I kin crack a wannut an' not feel a pain in de jaw."

"If you don't tell me, I won't extract—"

"Dar yer goes agin."

"Pull them."

"Wall, I'll tell yer. I'se been a married 'oman for thirty year."

"Have you lived with the same husband all the time?"

"Oh, no, sah. I'se switched aroun' a rite smart. But lemme tell yer. I married afore de wah when anybody could 'form de ceremony, no matter ef he neber seed de inside ob a meetin'-house, an' when de only license 'quired wuz de say so ob de marster. Arter de 'bellion wuz ober I married my ole man arter de fashun ob de white folks. Since dat time we'se libed happy, 'septener a few months when I run away wid a yaller man what worked at a gin. Wall, tuther day de ole man come home fetchin' a 'oman wid him. He said dat de 'oman wuz his aunt. She is de onerest 'oman I eber seed, but I soon 'gunter 'spicion dat she wan't his aunt. Den I got hot an' biled, 'specially when she put fine clothes on herself an' went struttin' aroun.'"

"What has that to do with your teeth?"

"I'se a gittin' ter dat. My husband wars false teef. De oman ain't got none, an' yesterday I seed her warin' my husband's teef. Ez long ez she didn't hab no teef it didn't make no difference ter me, fer she wuz powerful 'onery, but when she went smillin' aroun' wid a mouf full ob teef, dat wuz morn a wife oughter stan'. So I wants dese teef tuck out so I kin git a holt ob de false teef and war 'em. My ole man can't get no moah. He never would hab got dese, sepenter he foun' 'em on a battle fiel, endurin' de wah. Come, ketch holt of me wid yer grabs. Heah's yer money," and she untied the toe of a sock and poured out a lot of silver. "Put on yer clamps."

The dentist went to work, and then the only noise heard during the operation was an occasional groan from the woman, or the sharp snap of the instruments as they slipped from a stubborn tooth. When the operation closed, the woman handed over a sufficient amount of cash, mumbling something about getting ahead of the "ornery 'oman," retired, leaving the dentist contemplating a huge pile of teeth.
